Access to natural light was very important to this client. The color palette was derived from the client's multinational business activities with a strong predominance of yellow, terracotta, and orange with additions of greens and blues reminiscent of a Mediterranean landscape.

The main conference room location takes advantage of a spectacular window more than 20 feet tall. A floor-to-ceiling glass wall lets light flow into the corridor, reception area, and elevator lobby. A built-in credenza pierces the glass wall, doubling as a "console" table on the corridor side.

To bring daylight into the interior spaces, clerestories were placed in most interior walls and full height sidelights next to the doors of the perimeter offices. The walls and workstation panel fabrics reflect the corporate colors.
